PAIN IN THE ...?

There is no delicate way to approach the intended subject, and sufferers will all agree that this is an unpleasant condition, however recent developments at Compoundia may offer newfound relief to sufferers of Hemorrhoids. This article focuses on a new way to deliver medications to patients suffering from this painful condition and while it may sound scary, Compoundia's Rectal Rocket dosage form is good news for patients and bad news for hemorrhoids.

For those of you who are unfamiliar with the condition, hemorrhoids are small veins that have become enlarged and swollen around the rectum and anus. There are two types of hemorrhoids, internal and external.

External hemorrhoids develop under the skin just outside the opening of the anus. They may cause pain and itch and are often tender to the touch. Internal hemorrhoids are found further up, inside the rectum and while they are often not painful they can bleed and become painful if they are pushed out (prolapsed).

The difficulty with most internal use medications is that it is very difficult to keep medication in a conventional suppository at the site of the Hemorrhoid. The Rectal Rocket is a cleverly shaped suppository that is designed to keep medications at the site of inflammation for up to six hours. The result of this revolutionary new treatment is that patients can treat their condition overnight with extremely good reduction in pain, inflammation and discomfort.
